INTERNATIONAL FLIGHT CENTER SET TO OPEN NEW FBO TERMINAL IN JANUARY

News / Business aviation

International Flight Center at Miami Executive Airport (KTMB) is decking the halls of its new FBO terminal in time to open its doors this January. With the new facility—and its recently-opened hangar development—IFC is poised to offer aviators a new home base where luxury comes standard. While a grand opening event is in the early planning stages, IFC's leadership team has received the "all clear" to open the 10,500-square-foot FBO terminal within the first month of the year.

Wilfredo Valle, IFC's president commented: "We couldn't be more excited to start a new year in a new, luxury facility. Every detail of this development has been meticulously planned for the ultimate private flying experience—for pilots and passengers alike. Now, our accommodations will match the industry-leading care our customers have come to know and trust out of IFC. We look forward to opening our doors and welcoming traffic with our new gateway to Miami."

Featuring lounges, full private bed/bath snooze rooms, a private conference room with full A/V and seating for 10, and a café, the terminal will provide both crew and passengers with chic accommodations during their stay at the facility. While finishing touches of the terminal building are underway, operators have already begun taking advantage of IFC's new and modern amenities following the completion of its 84,000-square-foot hangar complex, completed this year.

IFC's top-of-the-line hangars are designed with one factor in mind: its clients' needs. The beautiful facilities offer flexible short- and long-term leases with 24/7 surveillance and service. At 28,000 square feet each with 28-foot doors, the hangars have space to house multiple aircraft up to a Global 8000 in size. Catering to all modern business aircraft, each hangar will be equipped with foam-free fire suppression and perfectly spaced 480V outlets.

The complex is situated on IFC's expansive leasehold, featuring 550,000 square feet of ramp space. All tenants enjoy preferred charter, fuel and maintenance pricing with IFC's sister companies (Corporate Air Charter & Propel Aviation), in addition to IFC's professional, reliable and secure operations.

Located on the southwest side of Miami's premier private aviation airport, IFC lands travelers adjacent to the field's U.S. Customs office and just 15 miles from the city's downtown. Along with easy access to high-profile destinations, IFC provides operators with unparalleled FBO services, boutique concierge care, expert aircraft handling, and on-field aircraft sales and maintenance.

As an Avfuel-branded FBO, pilots enjoy competitive prices with Avfuel Contract Fuel, streamlined payments with the Avfuel Pro Card and lucrative rewards with AVTRIP.
