SKYSERVICE ACHIEVES AFRA ACCREDITATION FOR AIRCRAFT TEARDOWN AND RECYCLING

News / Business aviation, Maintenance / Trainings

Skyservice Business Aviation announced the launch of its industry-leading aircraft teardown business model. Accredited under the Aircraft Fleet Recycling Association's Best Maintenance Practices for Disassembly, this new venture offers sustainable solutions, addresses the current aircraft parts shortage crisis, and provides owners with a compelling return on investment for their retired aircraft.

Benjamin Murray, President and Chief Executive Officer of Skyservice commented: "Our AFRA accreditation represents a significant milestone in our commitment to sustainability and innovation within the aviation sector. The current challenges in the aircraft parts market present unique opportunities for responsible solutions. Our approach to aircraft teardowns not only addresses immediate supply chain issues but also contributes to a more sustainable aviation ecosystem while delivering a strong ROI for aircraft owners."

In response to the growing demand for aircraft parts amid supply chain disruptions, Skyservice has developed a comprehensive strategy that prioritizes environmentally conscious teardown practices. By leveraging cutting-edge technologies, industry expertise and AFRA accreditation, Skyservice aims to maximize the overhaul and recycling of aircraft components, reducing waste and minimizing environmental impact.

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

Skyservice recognizes the varied needs of aircraft owners at the end-of-lifecycle stage. To facilitate a seamless and financially rewarding experience, Skyservice's flexible approach offers tailored teardown options, catering to individual preferences and maximizing value recovery for retired aircraft. Owners can elect to directly sell their retired aircraft to Skyservice, ensuring guaranteed monetary return and complete management of the teardown process. Alternatively, Skyservice provides consignment services, handling the disassembly and subsequent sale of parts, with owners receiving a competitive share of the proceeds.

05 AUGUST 2024

ARTICLE LINK:
https://ut.50skyshades.com/news/maintenance-trainings/skyservice-achieves-afra-accreditation-for-aircraft-teardown-and-recycling

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.