THAI AIRWAYS FIRST A350 LEAVES THE PAINT SHOP

News / Manufacturer

Thai Airways first Airbus A350 moves closer to the flight line as the first plane left the Airbus paint shop in Toulouse.

Thai Airways have four Airbus A350-900 planes on order – this being the first of them. The A350s will replace some of the existing Boeing 777-200 fleet.

And Thai Airways purple tail fin looks especially pretty on the Airbus A350 (but then, I'm a sucker for this colour scheme of rich purple… or what some would call Cadbury's Purple).

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

Although Thai Airways has deferred a lot of new aircraft deliveries, it seems a compromise has been reached.

Hopefully, we'll see this plane in the sky soon, and winging its way over to Asia to operate new services.

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

SOURCE: BOARDINGAREA
ARTICLE LINK:
https://ut.50skyshades.com/news/manufacturer/thai-airways-first-a350-leaves-the-paint-shop

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.